FROM OUR RECTOR

Dear Parishioners,

Over the past few weeks, I have received many positive comments regarding the new lighting installed in the central dome of the Cathedral. These fixtures provide a significant amount of light in the nave of the Cathedral and, at the same time, highlight the many other areas that now seem very dark. With the central dome installation, we are now proceeding with the lighting plan for the remainder of the Basilica. This will take time as the supply chain is presenting many challenges.

Many thanks to the Friends of the Cathedral Basilica that sponsor our Annual Gala each year. You might also consider becoming a member of the John L. May Society. At present, we have a little over 60 members of our John L. May Society, a group comprised of men and women who have committed to giving $1,000 per year to support the upkeep of the art and architecture of the Cathedral Basilica. This is in addition to over 120 members of the Friends of the Cathedral who also make contributions annually to support the Cathedral Basilica preservation.

If you are interested in becoming a member of the Friends of the Cathedral, or in supporting the Cathedral preservation more strongly, please contact Chrissy Chapo in the rectory office for more information. Also, please mark your calendar for the Cathedral Gala on Saturday, August 20, 2022. This is our largest fundraiser of the year that directly supports the preservation of the Cathedral Basilica of St. Louis.

We encounter the disciples on the lake, while everything seemed to be sadly ending, Jesus came close to those seven tired and depressed disciples. Jesus, whom they had not yet recognized, invited them to look elsewhere: "Cast the net on the right side of the boat and you will find some." The seven accepted the invitation and obeyed: the fishing was great and miraculous. It was the advice Jesus had given them at the beginning of their friendship on the shores of that same lake. From those words and that catch they recognized him: "It is the Lord!" And when they reached the shore, they found a fire with bread and fish prepared by Jesus. They were speechless, as when one is overcome by love and tenderness.

Jesus then asks, "Simon, son of John, do you love me more than these?" Jesus asked Peter about love. Jesus did not ask him only once about love, but three times: that is, always. Every day the Lord questions us about love. Every day he entrusts us with the care of others. Christ is the one who loved us first and will never abandon us again, even when "another will fasten our belt around us and take us where we do not wish to go." What counts is faithfulness and love, which every Sunday is repeated for us; Jesus' love for his disciples and for each one of us.

ARCHBISHOP'S COLUMN

Our response to hard sayings requires integrity

Jesus lost followers when He offered challenging teachings, but He didn't soften the demand

ARCHBISHOP
ROZANSKI

SERVE THE LORD WITH GLADNESS

Dear brothers and sisters in Christ,

“This saying is hard; who can accept it?”

All this week, we're reading from John 6, where Jesus gives the bread of life discourse. He says, in no uncertain terms: “Unless you eat the flesh of the Son of Man and drink His blood you do not have life within you.”

Confronted with this hard saying, some — like Peter — believe in Him and remain His disciples. Others, finding the saying too hard, walk away: “As a result of this, many of His disciples returned to their former way of life and no longer walked with Him.”

This helps us consider a curious feature of today's world: How many people believe they can have it both ways, rejecting the hard saying, while still claiming to be His disciples? But it doesn't really work. It never has.

To respond adequately to this error, we have to be clear about two things. First, Jesus never stopped inviting people to follow Him! He was always willing to seek out “tax collectors and sinners;” He was always willing to welcome back the prodigal son or daughter. In that way, Jesus was very soft.

But, second, there are hard sayings, and there are hard choices to make. Jesus invites everyone to follow Him. But He never pretends that everyone who receives the invitation is a disciple. He leaves the choice to us — to accept the hard saying or to reject it. In that way, Jesus was very hard.

And it wasn't just the bread of life discourse. All through the Gospel of John, we see Jesus conduct a series of extended, hard conversations — for example, with Nicodemus, with the woman at the well, even with Pontius Pilate. Jesus is always willing to engage in the conversation and make the invitation. But He never softens the hard sayings. And He always leaves the choice with the person: to follow Him or walk away.

Similarly, in every age, the Church has had to maintain some hard sayings: about Jesus being truly divine, about the place of images (icons), about the sacraments — especially the Eucharist, about the pope, Mary's Immaculate Conception and Assumption, abortion, the purpose of human sexuality and a host of other issues. In every age, some people have remained with Jesus and some have walked away.

I wonder if we've lost some of that integrity, both as inviters and as followers. The world wants us to soften the demand — to pretend that there are no hard sayings and choices. But that wasn't Jesus' way, and it can't be ours.

St. Athanasius, whose feast day we celebrate this week (May 2), knew this pattern in his own life. He was present at the first great ecumenical council, the Council of Nicaea in 325, which defined the divinity of Christ. Athanasius was Bishop of Alexandria for 45 years after the council. He was exiled five times, for a total of 17 years, because he stood up for the hard sayings of the Council of Nicaea against those who wanted to soften the choice, making Jesus more than human but less than divine.

The world today presses believers to compromise the faith by avoiding hard sayings and choices. Our response needs to be a deeper examination of conscience — Have we compromised? — and a growth in integrity, both as evangelizers and as disciples.

Weekly Thoughts on Giving

"...Peter was distressed that Jesus had said to him a third time, 'Do you love me?' and he said to him, 'Lord, you know everything; you know that I love you.' Jesus said to him, 'Feed my sheep.'" (JOHN 21:17)

How often do you actually say the words "I love you" to Jesus, to family members, or to friends? We are made to be in relationship with God and each other. Sincerely telling someone that you love them is the best gift you can give them because it comes from your heart. You are giving them the gift of yourself. We all crave love. Tell someone you love them every day.
