FROM OUR RECTOR

Dear Parishioners,

Throughout our everyday lives, we rely on our wisdom to help us make decisions. Often when we find ourselves caught in a difficult situation, we seek the wisdom of others to guide us. This Sunday the Lord invites us to reflect on Wisdom. Wisdom is not just an intellectual knowledge or a deep understanding of something. Wisdom is a knowledge that helps us to live well; it is a practical knowledge of what is right and what is wrong. Wisdom is so important that the Bible tells us that it is more valuable than silver and gold.

The Book of Wisdom instructs us that we are to love and seek wisdom if we are going to truly live in wisdom. In order to live in wisdom, we must take a step back and look at the whole picture that makes up our individual lives. Only as we take time to reflect on our daily lives and various situations can we understand that certain ways of living can foster peace, happiness, and a deep love of God. Wisdom, however, does not imply that we will never make mistakes, but it does insist that we learn from our mistakes.

The First Letter to the Thessalonians from today's readings informs us that the end times are coming. A quick Google search will yield thousands of results on the topic of the end of time. This topic is fascinating for a lot of people. They are curious to know when it will occur, what will happen, and what comes after. For us, as followers of Jesus Christ, we should not concern ourselves with these questions. We can simply follow the instruction that He gave us. We do not know the day nor the hour when the Son of Man will return. Rather than getting caught up in trying to find the answer to these questions, we should instead live now in total confidence that one day we will live with Jesus for eternity.

The Gospel from St. Matthew today shows Jesus using the parable of the wise and the foolish. The wise come prepared while the foolish do not. We are invited to reflect on this story and gain wisdom from it. The reality is that anyone of us could die at any moment. This intent of Jesus' instruction is not to scare us, but simply remind us that we must be prepared at all times to receive Jesus in the Kingdom of Heaven.

ARCHBISHOP'S COLUMN

Praying always is a necessity

Readings and examples from saints show us that some ‘coincidences’ are really God’s providential direction for us

Dear brothers and sisters in Christ,

There are some amazing “coincidences” in the readings this week. I don’t think they’re coincidences at all, but part of God’s providential direction for us. Let me focus on three of them.

First: We’ve been reading sequentially through the Gospel of Luke since the beginning of September. This week, on the day we celebrate the feast of St. Rose Philippine Duchesne (Nov. 18), we “just happen” to read: “Jesus told His disciples a parable about the necessity for them to pray always without becoming weary” (Luke 18:1). Isn’t it interesting that “woman who prays always” is the name the Native Americans gave to St. Rose Philippine!

I think God wants us to ponder this point: How can we “pray always” today?

The Jesus prayer — Jesus, Son of the living God, have mercy on me, a sinner — is a simple prayer that can be repeated over and over. The spiritual masters say that it can be synchronized with the beating of our heart so that, as long as our hearts are beating we are, on some level, praying. This is like the admonition of St. Gregory of Nazianzus: “We must remember God more often than we draw breath.” We never grow weary of breathing. Our prayer can become more like that!

St. Augustine provides a different point of entry. He speaks of how our desire can become a place of prayer: “For the desire of your heart is itself your prayer. And if the desire is constant, so is your prayer.” We constantly desire things. Maybe we can more constantly desire God!

Second: We celebrate the feast of St. Albert the Great this week (Nov. 15). He’s the patron saint of scientists. This week we also “just happen” to read excerpts from the Book of Wisdom about how pondering the visible world can lead us to know the invisible creator: “For from the greatness and the beauty of created things their original author, by analogy, is seen.” This is followed by the words of Psalm 19: “The heavens proclaim the glory of God.”

I think God wants us to ponder this point: How can we come to a better appreciation of the relationship between faith and science today?

Word on Fire ministries recently released a series of short films called “Wonder: The Harmony of Faith and Science.” If you want to learn more about how faith and science can go together, I encourage you to watch them. Or you might look up the Society of Catholic Scientists. This large (and growing!) group explores many ways that faith and science work together.

Third and last, Psalm 82 this week says: “Rise up, O God, bring judgment to the earth.” But then, as we ponder God’s judgment, other readings this week “just happen” to confront us with a series of contraries. 1) “For Wisdom is a kindly spirit, yet she acquits not the blasphemer of his guilty lips.” 2) “If your brother sins, rebuke him; and if he repents, forgive him.” 3) “For the lowly may be pardoned out of mercy but the mighty shall be mightily put to the test.”

I think God wants us to ponder this point: How do we think of His judgment? For many people, their image of God’s judgment is all punishment or all mercy. These readings, however, challenge us to come up with a deeper, more nuanced image.

Let’s thank God for these providential “coincidences,” and ponder the questions they raise

Prayer for the Holy Souls in Purgatory

According to tradition, Our Lord told St. Gertrude the Great that each time she piously recited the following prayer, it would greatly ease the suffering of the holy souls in purgatory:

Eternal Father, I offer Thee the Most Precious Blood of Thy Divine Son, Jesus, in union with the masses said throughout the world today, for all the holy souls in purgatory, for sinners everywhere, for sinners in the universal church, those in my own home and within my family.

Amen.

Weekly Thoughts on Giving

"Therefore, stay awake, for you know neither the day nor the hour." - Matthew 25:13

Many of us have put off doing something because we think we are too busy. We've all said, "I'll do it later when I have time." Unfortunately, too many of us apply this attitude to our Faith. Jesus' call is urgent, in the here and now, in your current circumstances. How is God calling you to use your gifts today? Don't delay. None of us is guaranteed tomorrow.
