FROM OUR RECTOR

Dear Parishioners,

During my time as a college Seminarian, we would attend classes at St. Louis University. On the Feast of Saint Thomas Aquinas, a group of students in the College of Philosophy and Letters would spend the feast day reading aloud the Summa Theologica. The Summa is the best-known work of St. Thomas and is a compendium of all the main theological teachings of the Catholic Church. It was intended to be an instructional guide for theology students.

With his charism as a philosopher and theologian, he offered an effective model of harmony between faith and reason, dimensions of the human spirit that are completely fulfilled in the encounter and dialogue with one another.

According to St Thomas' thought, human reason, as it were, "breathes": it moves within a vast open horizon in which it can express the best of itself. When, instead, man reduces himself to thinking only of material objects or those that can be proven, he closes himself to the great questions about life, himself, and God and is thereby impoverished. The relationship between faith and reason is a serious challenge to the culture we find ourselves in today. Saint John Paul II wrote an Encyclical entitled Fides et Ratio - "Faith and Reason" - to address this topic.

I raise this topic because the state of our world seems to indicate we have left faith and reason behind. Instead of seeing "faith and reason as two wings on which the human spirit rises to the contemplation of truth" (Fides et Ratio), many have turned to the self as the center of truth and see reason as being separate from faith. It is necessary to admit that the tendency to consider "true" only that which can be experienced constitutes a limitation of human reason and that this tendency has led to the coexistence of rationalism and materialism, hyper-technology and unbridled instinct.

Faith presupposes reason and perfects it, and reason, enlightened by faith, finds the strength to rise to the knowledge of God and spiritual realities. Human reason loses nothing by opening itself to the content of faith, which, indeed, requires its free and conscious adherence.

Saint Thomas Aquinas, pray for us.

ARCHBISHOP'S COLUMN

Jesus Helps Us Fill Our Days with Meaning

To fill Ordinary Time with meaning, we need to figure out how to stay connected with Jesus

Dear brothers and sisters in Christ,

We're in a long stretch of Ordinary Time. In fact, because Easter is so late this year, we'll spend all of February in Ordinary Time.

The secular calendar struggles with Ordinary Time, so it keeps rushing from one big event to the next: the Super Bowl, Spring Training, Valentine's Day, Mardi Gras, St. Patrick's Day, March Madness, Opening Day and so on. Is it just me, or does it feel like the secular calendar is always needing to move quickly to the next celebration because none of them ever really satisfies our hearts?

How do we find meaning in Ordinary Time and fill our days with that meaning? I propose to you that it only happens in Jesus.

We look forward to these other events, make preparations for them and enjoy them. And there's nothing wrong with that! But the fact is, they only connect us with passing realities. That's why they never satisfy our search for meaning: because we were made for more than just passing realities.

Jesus, by contrast, connects us with something eternal. We long to connect with eternity, even in the midst of time. To fill Ordinary Time with meaning, we need to figure out how to stay connected with Jesus.

Brothers and sisters, we're all going to die. After that we'll rise and either live forever with Jesus or without Him. Which of those are we practicing on a day-to-day basis — living with Jesus or living without Him? Finding meaning and satisfaction in Ordinary Time hinges on that question.

ARCHBISHOP MITCHELL
ROZANSKI

SERVE THE LORD WITH GLADNESS

How, then, do we stay “recollected” — connected with the eternal in the midst of time?

We look forward to events like the Super Bowl; we might start each day by asking Jesus how He will come into our life that day, and look forward to it. We prepare for events like St. Patrick's Day; we might prepare our hearts for the way Jesus will show up each day, whether it's in joy or in sorrow. We enjoy the return of the Cardinals in person, on TV and on the radio; we might learn to enjoy the presence of Jesus at Mass, in online resources and in prayer.

God whispers to us in our conscience. He speaks His word to us in the Bible. He becomes present to us in the flesh at Mass. Staying recollected requires giving our attention to those things on a regular basis.

We celebrate three saints this week: St. Angela Merici (Jan. 27), St. Thomas Aquinas (Jan. 28) and St. John Bosco (Jan. 31). All three found a way to stay recollected; all three found meaning that filled their days; all three mark paths for us.

When we plug into the life of Jesus, we can still look forward to, prepare for and enjoy the celebrations of the secular calendar. We just won't look to them for more than they can offer. To fill Ordinary Time with eternal meaning, we need to look to Jesus.

Weekly Thoughts on Giving

“Go, eat rich foods and drink sweet drinks, and allot portions to those who had nothing prepared...”
NEHEMIAH 8:10

Ezra's instructions to the people show us that God does not forbid us from enjoying the good things in life. He wants us to be happy! However, God expects us to be grateful for all that He has given us and to generously share our blessings with those who are in need. Now here's the hard part – to share all we have without expecting anything in return.
