FROM OUR RECTOR

Dear Parishioners,

In today's Gospel, we hear that, in addition to the inner circle of the Twelve, Jesus appointed another seventy-two disciples (12 x 6) and sent them out in pairs to every town and place He Himself intended to visit. This is a powerful image of our Christian vocation: we are called to go ahead and prepare the way, but it is Jesus who ultimately plants the seed of faith. Jesus then gives His disciples several instructions—principles that still speak to us today.

First, He reminds them that the harvest is abundant, but the laborers are few. In other words, the work is great and there are too few who are willing to join Him in the task of gathering souls. This is a call to all His followers—including us. We must be careful not to exclude ourselves from this mission because we're middle-aged, married, retired, or already established in a career. The invitation is for everyone. It is never too late to respond.

Jesus also tells His disciples to travel light. He Himself "had nowhere to lay His head," carrying only the clothes He wore. Today, many of us are burdened by material possessions, to the point of having to protect them with advanced security systems. In our pursuit of comfort and security, we risk losing a more precious gift—our inner freedom. He instructs them not to stop for lengthy greetings. This may sound odd to our ears, but it speaks to the urgency of the mission. The harvest is ready, and there is no time to waste.

Finally, Jesus sends them out as bearers of peace. The Hebrew word shalom means far more than the absence of conflict—it points to a deep harmony with oneself, with others, with creation, and with God. "Blessed are the peacemakers," Jesus says, "for they shall be called children of God." Peace is at the heart of our Christian message, and it is rooted in faith, hope, and love.

As disciples, we must reflect on how we can live out these Gospel values, both individually and as a community. How can we effectively share the Good News with those around us? How can we be among the laborers Jesus speaks of—urgently needed in our world today?

This week, as a nation, we will celebrated Independence Day on Friday, July 4th. In the Declaration of Independence, we read: "We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable Rights, that among these are Life, Liberty, and the pursuit of Happiness." Throughout our history, countless men and women have given their lives to defend these values. Let us never fail to be grateful for the members of our Armed Forces—past and present—who have made such sacrifices on our behalf.

ARCHBISHOP'S COLUMN

Telling Our Story with Conviction and Humility

As we prepare next year for milestone anniversaries of our country and archdiocese, the truth of our glory is subtle and powerful

Dear brothers and sisters in Christ,

In Ephesians 2, St. Paul refers to Jesus as the “capstone” of our faith.

Or ... maybe he refers to Jesus as the “cornerstone” of our faith.

The Greek term is unclear. Translators and interpreters aren't sure which of those two St. Paul means, and a reasonable case can be made for either.

But both can be helpful ways to think of Jesus!

Architecturally, the cornerstone is where a building starts. Everything is measured from it. Christ certainly functions that way in the Church and for our faith.

A capstone, by contrast, is the last piece placed in an arch. Before the capstone is placed, the arch doesn't hold together; it would collapse! After the capstone is placed, all the parts are fitted together; the arch can bear its own weight. Christ certainly plays that role in the Church and in our faith, too!

I bring this up partly because it's interesting, but also because one year from now we'll celebrate the 200th anniversary of the Archdiocese of St. Louis and the 250th anniversary of our country. How we think of the cornerstone and capstone of faith shapes how we live as Christians. Likewise, how we think of the cornerstone and capstone of our national identity shapes how we live as Americans.

We often tell the story of our country in terms of independence. We treat independence as the cornerstone and capstone of what it means to be America and to be American. And that's certainly part of our story! But it's not the whole story.

In the founding of our nation, we would never have defeated Great Britain unless we had asked for and obtained the help of France. Asking for help and depending on others is a cornerstone of our history and identity, too.

ARCHBISHOP MITCHELL
ROZANSKI

SERVE THE LORD WITH GLADNESS

In the Westward expansion of the nation — which was important to the unfolding of our sense of national identity — the Lewis and Clark expedition played a foundational role. That expedition was certainly full of ingenuity and courage. But it also wouldn't have succeeded if the Corps of Discovery had not been welcomed by the Mandan and Hidatsa peoples during the first over-wintering in present-day Bismarck. We were never a people who succeeded simply by muscling through hardship; we have always also been a people who were welcomed and helped by others.

I am no fan of the revisionist history project which says that there are no glories in our national story. I think there are glories! But I also think those glories have deeper, more subtle contours than we sometimes admit. Learning those deeper contours helps us to tell our story better. Telling our story better helps us to live our national identity better.

As we think about celebrating our 200th anniversary as a diocese, we know we have to tell our story with both humility and conviction. Why humility? Because we haven't lived our faith perfectly and will continue to live it imperfectly. Why conviction? Because the Gospel we have shared and will continue to share offers people the greatest gift: eternal life.

As we celebrate July 4th this year and look forward to celebrating the 250th anniversary of the nation next year, let's ponder a similar lesson. There is a glory to America. And that glory is meant to be a gift to the whole world! But the full truth of that glory is at once more subtle and more powerful than the muscular, individual achievement of independence.

Welcome Fr. Archer

It is with great joy that we welcome Father Charles Archer as the new Parochial Vicar of the Cathedral Basilica of Saint Louis.

A native son of our Archdiocese, Father Archer was born and raised in St. Margaret Mary Alacoque Parish in south St. Louis County. He attended St. Louis University High School and the University of Dallas, and in 2016 responded to God's call by entering Kenrick-Glennon Seminary. He was ordained to the priesthood on May 19, 2021, along with five classmates, and recently completed his first assignment as Associate Pastor at St. Peter's in Kirkwood.

In his first homily after ordination, Father Archer shared two heartfelt reasons why he chose to serve as a parish priest in the Archdiocese of St. Louis. He said:

"First, I love how parish priesthood resembles the life of Jesus Christ. The parish priest, like Jesus's own ministry, is radically available to all people to be their Spiritual Father. Second, I love the city of St. Louis. Although this city certainly has some tumultuous history, I love belonging to this city and desire to serve here as a priest. It is only through the love of Jesus Christ present in the Church that this city will find healing and renewal."

As Father Archer begins his ministry among us at the Cathedral, we are grateful for the gifts he brings—his zeal, his devotion to the priesthood, and his deep love for Christ and His Church. Let us warmly welcome him into our parish family and keep him in our prayers as he begins this new chapter in his priestly service. Welcome, Father Archer!

Welcome Fr. Fonseca

It is with great joy that we welcome Father Peter Fonseca to the Cathedral Parish.

While Father Fonseca will celebrate Mass and hear confessions, he is currently assigned to the Cathedral "in residence" due to his other Archdiocesan responsibilities and his ongoing pursuit of a doctorate in Health Care Ethics.

The second oldest of Dr. Peter and Mimi Fonseca's eleven children, Father Fonseca's vocation has been shaped by a strong foundation of faith and family. His priesthood is marked by deep dedication, pastoral zeal, and a profound love for the Church and the people she serves.

After graduating from high school in 2007, Father entered Kenrick-Glennon Seminary, where he earned both a Master of Arts in Theology and a Master of Divinity. He was ordained a priest for the Archdiocese of St. Louis in May 2015 by Archbishop Robert Carlson.

While serving as an associate pastor, Father Fonseca undertook graduate studies in biomedical ethics. He earned a certificate in Health Care Ethics from the National Catholic Bioethics Center and later a Master of Science in Bioethics from the University of Mary, where he was honored by the faculty as the Distinguished Graduate Student. He is now continuing his academic work at the doctoral level.

In addition to his pastoral ministry, Father Fonseca serves as the Director of the Office for Continuing Formation for Priests, where he supports his brother priests in their ongoing growth in holiness and leadership. Welcome, Father Fonseca!

Stewardship Reflection

“He said to them, ‘The harvest is abundant, but the laborers are few...’” LUKE 10:2

As Catholics we are all called to serve. Each of us has been given “charisms” otherwise known as gifts from the Holy Spirit to help build God’s Church. Our charisms can only be used for good. We know that we are using them in the right ministry when we are filled with joy and we want to share stories about our charitable works. Discern how God is calling you to use your charisms. Say “yes” to what God is calling you to do and then do it! Share your joy and invite others to do the same.
