FROM OUR RECTOR

Dear Parishioners,

Immediately after preaching the Beatitudes, Jesus turns to His disciples and says something both beautiful and challenging: "You are the salt of the earth... You are the light of the world."

At this point in the Gospel, the disciples were hardly spiritual giants. They were still learning, still struggling, still very much "works in progress." And yet, Jesus already entrusts them—and us—with this extraordinary mission: to bring flavor, hope, and light into the world.

Many of us might instinctively respond, "Lord, surely You have the wrong people." We know our weaknesses. We know our sins. Like St. Peter, we could easily say, "Go away from me, Lord, for I am a sinful person." And yet, that honest awareness of our limitations is not meant to paralyze us. True humility does not lead to passivity or discouragement. It does not say, "I'm unworthy, so I won't try." Instead, it says, "I am weak—but God is strong."

Too often, we confuse humility with resignation. We settle for less than God intends. We begin to believe that holiness and missionary discipleship are meant for "other people"—the saints, the scholars, the especially gifted. But the Gospel insists otherwise. Jesus looks at ordinary men and women and says: You are salt. You are light. Not because of who we are—but because of who He is.

Our light does not come from our personalities, our talents, or even our virtues. It comes from Christ. St. Paul understood this well. Writing to the Corinthians, he admitted that he came to them "in weakness and fear and much trembling." And yet, he proclaimed Christ boldly. Why? So that their faith would rest "not on human wisdom, but on the power of God." Paul's weakness did not diminish his witness. It strengthened it—because it made room for God's grace.

The same is true for us. When we rely only on ourselves, our light grows dim. When we rely on the Lord, His light shines through us. Our pride is never in ourselves, but in Him. As Paul reminds us: "Whoever boasts, should boast in the Lord."

Jesus then gives us very practical guidance: "Let your light shine before others, that they may see your good works and give glory to your Father in heaven." This is not about drawing attention to ourselves. It is about pointing others to God through lives of charity, integrity, and compassion. The prophet Isaiah makes it concrete: share your bread with the hungry, welcome the homeless, clothe the naked and care for your neighbor. This is what light looks like. This is what salt tastes like.

My prayer for all of us is that we never underestimate what God can do through willing hearts—even imperfect ones. If we stay close to Christ, if we trust His grace, if we serve generously, then His light will shine through us in ways we may never fully see. And in the end, that light will not lead people to us—but to Him.

ARCHBISHOP'S COLUMN

Faith is How We Allow God to Find Rest in Our Soul

As we prepare for the start of Lent on February 18, we can look for how God comes to find rest in us

Dear brothers and sisters in Christ,

Lent starts next week on Feb. 18.

Providentially, we read this week about Solomon's dedication of the Temple. Reflecting on it can really help our preparation for Lent. In what way?

The Psalm refrain accompanying the dedication is from Psalm 132: "Lord, go up to the place of your rest." You see, the Temple was not only meant to be a worship site, it was also meant to provide a visible symbol of an invisible reality. St. Elizabeth of the Trinity, in a beautiful prayer quoted in the Catechism of the Catholic Church, says to God: "Grant my soul peace. Make it your heaven, your beloved dwelling, and the place of your rest." Her prayer helps us to make the connection between the reality of the Temple as a visible place for the Lord to rest and the reality of the soul as an invisible place for the Lord to rest.

Faith is how we allow God to find the place of His rest in our soul. St. Augustine makes the point when he says: "Christ is formed in the believer by the faith of the inner man." St. Bonaventure makes a similar point when he says: "through faith Christ lives in our hearts." Remember, this is why Christ didn't perform many mighty deeds in Nazareth: He found no resting place there because of their lack of faith (Matthew 13).

One of the great metaphors for this relationship is the cup. When a cup is turned upside down, you can pour water over it. If the water finds no place to "rest," it's not the water's fault! When the cup is turned right side up, the water finds its place of rest there. Faith works the same way in the soul.

ARCHBISHOP MITCHELL ROZANSKI

SERVE THE LORD WITH GLADNESS

We see this reality played out in the life of Solomon. He starts out well! His wisdom is combined with humility, and his humility expresses itself in obedience to the covenant. All is well in the external kingdom, because all is well in the internal kingship of his soul. The cup is right side up.

Later in Solomon's life, however, the cup gets turned upside down. "When Solomon was old ... his heart was not entirely with the Lord, his God." His knowledge remains! But his former humility is replaced with pride, and that pride expresses itself in disobedience to the covenant. Eventually, the external kingdom becomes divided; the main reason is because the internal kingship of Solomon's soul was divided.

What God says to Solomon, when his heart turns away from the covenant, is important for us, too: "Since this is what you want ..." Basically, God says: This is the internal reality you have chosen, so I will give it to you externally as well. That's a key lesson in how God's judgment works: It's not an extrinsic imposition, but an intrinsic working out of our choices.

Save a Life this Lent: Donate Blood

Please consider signing up to donate blood. Sunday, March 22 from 9am until 2pm.

- Every 2 seconds someone in the U.S. needs blood and or platelets.
- Approximately 29,000 units of red blood cells are needed every day in the U. S.
- Nearly 5,000 units of platelets and 6,500 units of plasma are needed daily in the U.S.
- Nearly 16 million blood components are transfused each year in the U.S.
- Sickle cell disease affects 90,000 to 100,000 people in the U.S. About 1,000 babies are born with the disease each year. Sickle cell patients can require blood transfusions throughout their lives.
- The average red blood cell transfusion is approximately 3 units.
- A single car accident victim can require as many as 100 units of blood.
- Blood and platelets cannot be manufactured; they can only come from volunteer donors.
- The blood type most often requested by hospitals is type O.
- One donation can help save more than one life

The Red Cross provides about 40% of our nation's blood and blood components, all from generous volunteer donors. But supply can't always meet demand because only about 3% of age-eligible people donate blood yearly. Each new donor helps us meet patient needs.

Type O negative red cells can be given to patients of all blood types. Because only 7% of people in the U.S. are type O negative, it's always in great demand and often in short supply.

Stewardship Reflection

"Let your light shine before others, that they may see your good works and give glory to your Father who is in heaven." MATTHEW 5:16

The generosity of being a good steward of your gifts has a positive effect on people, and it is contagious! Good works encourages more good works. Generosity is a by-product of a grateful lifestyle. The more we recognize God's gifts, the more we want to share them. Good stewards recognize that God is working through them, and they don't put themselves above the people they have been called to help.
