FROM OUR RECTOR

Dear Parishioners,

The Gospel this First Sunday of Lent shows us that Jesus enters into this very struggle. He is led by the Spirit into the desert. For forty days He fasts. For forty days He confronts temptation. He does not avoid the desert; He enters it willingly. In doing so, He shares in the many deserts of our world—the deserts of loneliness, confusion, suffering, and doubt.

The tempter approaches when Jesus is weak with hunger. “Turn these stones into bread.” What could be more reasonable? Shouldn’t we first satisfy our own needs? Yet Jesus refuses to reduce life to mere survival or comfort. He answers with the strength that flows from the Word of God: “One does not live on bread alone.”

The second temptation invites Him to stand at the pinnacle of the Temple and test God. It is the temptation of self-centeredness—of putting oneself at the center and expecting even angels to serve you. But the Lord shows us that true freedom is not found in self-assertion, but in trust and responsibility toward others.

Finally comes the temptation of power. From the heights of a mountain, all the kingdoms of the world are displayed before Him. “All these I shall give to you.” How often in history have wars, injustices, and human suffering been the price paid for the idol of power? Jesus rejects it decisively: “You shall worship the Lord your God, and Him alone shall you serve.”

In the desert, Jesus proclaims again the primacy of God and the kingdom of love. And notice how the Gospel ends: angels come and minister to Him. The desert does not have the last word. Faithfulness does. When we live Lent as Jesus lived those forty days—rooted in the Word, humble before the Father, steadfast in temptation—the desert within us begins to bloom.

May these forty days be a time of real struggle, yes—but also of real transformation. As we draw near to the Lord in prayer, fasting, and works of charity, may we find ourselves strengthened by His Word and renewed in His love. And may we, like those angels in the Gospel, become ministers of consolation and hope to the weak and the poor.

This is the season to remain close to the Lord, to imitate Him in the battle against evil, and to allow Him to transform our desert into a garden of love

ARCHBISHOP'S COLUMN

Begin Lent with the End in Mind

God draws us to become more like Him on step at a time

Dear brothers and sisters in Christ,

Let's start Lent with one of the "seven habits of highly effective people" — begin with the end in mind.

The end we should keep in mind is indicated to us in this week's readings. They begin with the admonition, "Be holy, for I, the Lord your God, am holy" (Leviticus 19:2). They end with the admonition, "Be perfect, as your heavenly Father is perfect" (Matthew 5:48).

Leviticus 19 explores this in a way that can be really helpful to our sense of beginning with the end in mind. It articulates a series of commands, and each of them concludes with: "I am the Lord." If we understand that the right way, it's a huge compliment! God is saying, "Look, I made you to be like me. And when you do these things, you become less like me. So, if you want to become more like me, don't do these things!"

Let's explore that for a moment. All lies are, by nature, foreign to God — because God is truth itself. Therefore: "You shall not lie or speak falsely to one another" (Leviticus 19:11).

All stealing is, by nature, foreign to God — because God is generosity itself. Therefore: "You shall not defraud or rob your neighbor" (Leviticus 19:13).

I think we might add some other things to this list — things like cynicism, which you never encounter in Jesus.

So, first: Think about what might be added to the list of "things that are, by nature, foreign to God." What are some characteristics of God that are important measuring sticks for our own growth?

And, second, in light of that list, think about how many parts of your heart need conversion!

Now, it would be easy to consider all of that and despair: "I'll never get there!" It's not entirely wrong to feel that way. As Psalm 130 says: If the Lord marked our iniquities, none of us could stand.

But, on a merely human level, let's cite the traditional saying: "How do you eat an elephant? One bite at a time!"

And, on a deeper level, let's reflect on the characteristics of that same God who is our measure. God is merciful — so we know He wants sinners to do it. God is just — so we know it has to be done. And God is patient — so we know He's willing to take us one step at a time.

We hear all of that in the story of Jonah's interaction with the city of Nineveh this week. Nineveh is headed toward destruction because of its sinful ways. But, in response to Jonah's preaching, Nineveh repents — and God is pleased!

There are many parts of our hearts that need to turn more deeply to God! But the turning is the thing for Lent. The joy of our relationship with God is also the challenge of our relationship with God: He won't stop until every part of our heart is turned toward Him and cleansed from sin. That requires some deep cleaning.

That's the end we need to keep in mind.

So, let's start one bite at a time: What's one part of your heart that could be turned more toward God this week?

Sacrament of Marriage

Congratulations to Alex & Anna England (pictured below) who were united in the Sacrament of Marriage at the Cathedral Basilica on Saturday, February 7, 2026 at 1:30 in the afternoon.

Love is patient, love is kind; love does not envy or boast; it is not arrogant or rude. It does not insist on its own way; it is not irritable or resentful; it does not rejoice in wrongdoing, but rejoices with the truth.
