Dear Parishioners,

We are pleased to welcome Deacon Garrett Hugeback to the Cathedral Basilica as he continues his formation for the priesthood at Kenrick-Glennon Seminary. A native of Wall Lake, Iowa, Garrett is a seminarian for the Diocese of Sioux City and was ordained to the transitional diaconate on June 6, 2026, at the Cathedral of the Epiphany in Sioux City. Deacon Hugeback graduated from East Sac County High School before attending Conception Seminary College and later Kenrick-Glennon Seminary. As a transitional deacon, Garrett will have the opportunity to proclaim and preach the Gospel, assist at the altar, baptize, witness marriages, and accompany families at funerals. We are grateful to have Deacon Garrett with us at the Cathedral Basilica and look forward to getting to know him in the months ahead.

We are delighted to welcome Jacob Price, a seminarian for the Archdiocese of St. Louis, to the Cathedral Basilica. Jacob is entering his third year of theology in his priestly formation and comes from St. Joseph Parish in Cottleville. He is also a graduate of St. Louis University High School. According to his bio on the Vocation website for the Archdiocese of St. Louis, Jacob has a particular interest in Scripture scholarship and counts St. Michael the Archangel among his favorite saints. During his time with us, Jacob will have the opportunity to experience many dimensions of Cathedral Parish life and will assist as a Master of Ceremonies for Archdiocesan Liturgies at the Cathedral.

Please join me in welcoming both of these men as they begin their service to the Cathedral. Also, please keep them and all seminarians in your prayers as they continue to discern and prepare for priestly service.

Jesus explains to his disciples the meaning of his passion, death, and resurrection—the very heart of the Gospel and of our Christian faith. But Peter does not understand. Perhaps he imagined a Messiah who would only triumph, without suffering or the Cross. So Peter takes Jesus aside and rebukes him: “God forbid, Lord! This must never happen to you.” His response is sincere, but sincerity is not enough. Peter is still thinking in human terms rather than seeing the love that leads Jesus to give his life for others. And so Jesus responds forcefully: “Get behind me, Satan! You are a stumbling block to me.” Peter, whom Jesus had just called the rock upon which he would build his Church, has now become a stumbling block because he is resisting the Father’s will.

Yet Jesus does not abandon Peter. Instead, he calls him once again to follow: “Whoever wishes to come after me must deny himself, take up his cross, and follow me.” That invitation is also addressed to us. To deny ourselves means recognizing that we are not the lords of our own lives; to take up the cross means being willing to give ourselves in love and service to others. “Whoever wishes to save his life will lose it, but whoever loses his life for my sake will find it.” The Christian life is ultimately found not by holding tightly to ourselves, but by following Christ and learning, day by day, to make his way of self-giving love our own.

The Questions We Ask Can Lead Toward or Away from Life in Christ

We can steward our everyday conversations in ways that build people up or in ways that tear people down

Dear brothers and sisters in Christ,

We all know that the same question can be asked in different ways: It can convey a snarky tone or a genuine inquiry, for example.

This week's readings invite us to reflect on another dimension of questions: whether they lead us into the mysteries of Christ or away from those mysteries. For example, in the Gospel of Luke, Jesus visits His hometown of Nazareth. When He finishes preaching, people ask: "Is this not the son of Joseph?" Note carefully: The words of that question could be legitimate. But, in its context, the question itself is misleading. That is to say, the question leads them away from the mystery of Jesus' life, not more deeply into it. They're asking the wrong question.

By contrast, in the very next passage, Jesus is preaching in Capernaum. After He preaches and drives out a demon, the people ask: "What is there about His word?" In this case, the question is drawing people more deeply into the mystery of Jesus' life: His words are showing He is the Word. Even if they don't have the answer yet, they're asking the right question.

In First Corinthians, St. Paul is trying to clear up a dispute: People have broken into factions, claiming to belong to different apostles. Paul asks them, pointedly: "What is Apollos, after all, and what is Paul?" Here, Paul's question draws them to the mystery. Then, knowing they need more help, he answers the question: "I planted, Apollos watered, but God caused the growth."

Later, in First Corinthians, St. Paul is addressing the arrogance of the people. He asks them: "What do you possess that you have not received?" Here's another question that leads them more deeply into the mystery:

ARCHBISHOP

SERVE THE LORD
WITH GLADNESS

in his case, the mystery of being members of Christ's body and receiving everything through Him. But this time he doesn't answer the question for them. It's enough to leave them wrestling with the right question. St. Paul says that we are "stewards of the mysteries of God." We know that we can "steward" our everyday conversations in ways that build people up or in ways that tear people down — and we often do it by the kinds of questions we ask.

This week we begin September and start the Labor Day weekend. It's the unofficial end of summer and beginning of fall. And that means we're turning toward an election season.

It seems to me that we can and should be better "stewards" of the election by paying careful attention to the kinds of questions we ask and the kinds of questions we hear in political advertising. Just as in the Gospels, the questions we ask can lead to the heart of the matter or distract us from the heart of the matter. I encourage all of us to study the readings this week. Pay attention to the kinds of questions that are asked — how they lead us into or away from the central mysteries of life in Christ. Then, start applying those lessons to the questions we ask in our own everyday discourse. And, finally, start thinking about the election in terms of whether or not we're asking the right questions.

Catholic Charities' House to Home Program

HELPING FAMILIES REBUILD WITH DIGNITY AND LOVE

Bringing Hope and Home to Families Rebuilding After Disaster

When families lose everything, Catholic Charities of the Archdiocese of St. Louis helps them begin again. The House to Home Program invites parishes, schools, or organizations to turn bare rooms into homes filled with hope and love.

HOW IT WORKS

- Parishes, schools, or organizations "adopt" a family in need and receive a House to Home profile featuring that family's story, key needs, and an Amazon Wish List QR code.
- Participants can purchase household items directly or organize parish-wide donation drives. Then, assist in coordinating the delivery of these items to the family.
- When the family moves in, Catholic Charities ensures their new home is stocked with essentials and a reminder that they are not alone through your support.

Each item says you are seen, you are valued, and you are home.

HOW TO GET INVOLVED

1. Ask your parish, school, or organization to join the program and contact Catholic Charities to be paired with a family.
2. Agree to volunteer and Family Engagement guidelines.
3. Share the Family Flyer in your parish bulletin, on social media, or with ministry groups.
4. Pray for the families rebuilding their lives and for all who help make their new beginnings possible.

Sacrament of Marriage

Congratulations to Mr. & Mrs. Justin & Maggie Herman who were united in the Sacrament of Marriage at the Cathedral Basilica of St. Louis on Saturday, August 8, 2026 at 11 in the morning.

"Love is patient, love is kind. It is not jealous, is not pompous, it is not inflated. It is not rude it does not seek its own interests, it is not quick-tempered, it does not brood over injury, it does not rejoice in wrongdoing but rejoices with truth. It bears all things, believes all things, hopes all things, endures all things. Love never fails."

- 1 Corinthians 13:1-8
